THE GREAT RACE.

How $20,000 was Won.

TRUE BLUE WINS THE [illegible] AND LOSES HIS RACE.

[illegible]

[From the S. F. Call and Chronicle, Nov. 15th.]

Yesterday will rank as a memorable day in the annals of the California turf. Over a dismal, gracefully heavy track and in four hotly contested heats, the California stallion Thad Stevens won the great race of four miles and repeat over two of the best bred and noblest of America's race horses, and that after having little better than saved his distance in the first two heats.

The promise of the Pacific Jockey Club that the greatest race seen in America since the day that Lexington beat Lecomte over the New Orleans track at the same distance has been handsomely fulfilled. Thanks to the energy of the President, Mr. Bryant, and his associates, and the liberal spirit of the Eastern gentlemen who brought their horses three thousand miles by rail that they might run for our entertainment and—the twenty thousand dollar purse. The victor has won himself fresh laurels by his performance, but even the brightness of these does not dull the record of those which ran against him. One, the beautiful and symmetrical True Blue, had to abandon the contest through an accident—the horse which had been full of life and ambition and speed one moment, the next was hobbling along on three legs, the picture of disappointment, chagrin and pain. It was a sad sight to see so noble a specimen of horseflesh as True Blue limping with bandaged leg toward his stable, while the air rang with the plaudits of the surging crowd which greeted Thad as winner of the heat.

The race was four miles and repeat for a purse of $20,000, to be divided as follows: $15,000 to the first horse, $3,000 to the second and $2,000 to the third. By the rules of the Jockey Club no horse was allowed to carry off more than one of these stakes, so that in case one horse distanced the field all but the first money was to revert to the Club. There were named the following well known thoroughbreds:

Thad Stevens, of California, 8 years old, owned by George Treat, ridden by Charles Ross, in red jacket and blue and yellow quarter cap, 114 pounds up.

True Blue, of Kentucky, 4 years old, owned by John J. Chamberlain, ridden by George Barbee, in white jacket with red spots and red cap, 108 pounds up.

Joe Daniels, of Michigan, 4 years old, owned by Wm. Wightman, and ridden by W. J. Palmer, 108 pounds up.

Mamie Hall, of California, aged, owned by W. Hall, and ridden by Perfect, orange and purple, 111 pounds up.

Hubbard, a New York horse, had been named for the race, but he utterly broke in training and so did not start. True Blue had repeatedly been declared not himself during the week, but showed himself to be in such good fix yesterday, that he started with many friends behind him, although Stevens sold a large favorite in the pools. He is a fine animal and deserved a better fate than that which befel him yesterday, and which may force his withdrawal from the track forever.

THE TRACK.

Who is to be held responsible for the condition of the track we have no means of knowing, but it was simply cruel to run the horses on such a course as that of yesterday. The soil is good enough, and the track has been five hundred per cent better, but yesterday simply a mass of sand and loose soil over which no thoroughbred should be started, whatever the stake. It was heavy and yet hard in spots—no horse could make time over it, and it seemed as though the managers of the track had trusted in Providence to wet it down and had been too lazy to anticipate Pluvius with the artificial rain distributor—the watering cart.

The responsible positions of Judges were filled by Messrs. Nathan Coombs of Napa, Thomas Bodly of San Jose, and Fred Collyer of this city.

THE FLYERS.

At twenty-five minutes past two o'clock Joe Daniels appeared on the track under his blankets, putting in first appearance. A colored groom was leading him. As nearly as could be determined he appeared under his coverings to be in excellent condition, right in his eye, free in his gait, limber and in every way fit for the race. A minute afterwards Old Thad showed up and, being at once recognized by the crowd, was greeted with enthusiastic cheering. Thad looked around, and in his quiet way he seemed to imply that he appreciated the compliment. But he retained his composure unruffled, and with his habitual placidity of temper he allowed himself to be walked up and down the quarter stretch by his groom. A boy was then put upon his back and Thad galloped up and down the track two or three times with that remarkable cat-like gait peculiar to him. Mamie Hall also emerged from her stable in good fix and went off for preliminary exercise at a slow gallop, but with a long telling stride. Five minutes after his competitors True Blue was brought out. He was completely swathed in his blankets, and even his limb clothes had not been removed. True Blue's advent was greeted with quite a sensation of applause. All the horses were on the track, and the Judges immediately rang the bell to saddle up. When True Blue stripped and Barbee mounted the horse stood forth what he is, a thoroughbred of the best breeding. Barbee galloped him up the stretch, and the least bit of stiffness was perceptible in his fore legs. When Thad was peeled every eye was fixed on him. Welch, the trainer, and Charley Ross, his jockey, were at his side and saw to his being prepared for the race. He was in distinctive condition. Soon the saddle girths were adjusted and the [illegible] went into the saddle very [illegible] and then took Old Thad off for a little warmer. Thad started off as if he were a venerable cow struck a gentle trot, then broke into a gallop, and the moment he struck his racing gait he showed what condition he was in, fit to run for a man's life. His eye brightened and Charley had to take a double grip on the rein, and as he dashed along with a broad, swinging stride an involuntary cheer was given by the crowd.

THE RACE.

The riders having been weighed at thirty-five minutes past 2 o'clock, A. J. Bryant, the President of the Jockey Club, stepped out upon the platform in the Judges' stand and, tapping the bell to enjoin silence and attention, directed the horses to take their position for the first heat. The voice of the pool auction [illegible] was hushed and the [illegible] suppressed, but deep excitement came over the throngs up in the stand and on the quarterstretch. Thad Stevens drew the pole, True Blue second, Mamie Hall third and Joe Daniels outside. The saddles were quickly put on the horses. Henry Welch called young Ross aside and gave him his final instructions in regard to riding the old horse. The lad [illegible] understandingly and immediately afterwards went up and [illegible] back of his horse and [illegible] taken position with the others.

The First Heat.

They got the word in the first trial with a fine start, but Thad and Daniels [illegible] at the [illegible] At the quarter in the first mile Thad lead [illegible] his advantage [illegible] Daniels [illegible] changed positions with Blue, Mamie Hall bringing up the rear. The next half mile was run without a change in the relative positions of the horses. On the third quarter [illegible] at the end of the third mile she was two lengths ahead of Stevens, with Blue [illegible] at the latter's tail and Daniels a length behind Blue. The same [illegible] the running at the [illegible] At the quarter she was four lengths [illegible] the relative [illegible] True Blue was now let out a little and began to [illegible] At the half he [illegible] the lead [illegible] and [illegible] passed the mare, taking the first place [illegible] which elicited considerable cheering among his backers. Hall gave signs of distress and fell hopelessly behind. On the third mile Daniels [illegible] up for the heat and was within two lengths of Blue at the quarter. Thad's rider seeing that Hall was practically out of the race, and that Blue and Daniels were struggling at it for the heat and tiring each other, adopted his familiar tactics with the old horse and [illegible] to hold him up in order to save him for the ensuing heats. At the half Blue was a length ahead of Daniels and Stevens was a dozen lengths behind. Blue and Daniels ran together around the turn. At the end of the third mile Blue had pulled away from Daniels a length and Thad about 15 lengths behind. Daniels now increased his pace a little, and at the quarter on the last mile was neck and neck with Blue, Thad being 30 yards in the rear and Hall out of sight. At the half Stevens was 15 lengths behind and it was feared that he would be shut out, as the Eastern horses were running like the wind. Daniels fairly outfooted the Kentucky horse around the turn and swung into the homestretch a length ahead. He kept on increasing his advantage and passed under the wire two lengths ahead of Blue, Thad being enabled to save his distance by a few lengths by the free use of whip and spur. He was held up so long and came near being shut out. Time, 7:45. The time by miles was as follows: 2:03, 2:01, 1:47½, 1:[illegible].

The result was hailed with loud shouts by those who had bought pools on him. Mamie Hall came in some time after the saddles had been taken from the other horses. She was much distressed, and as she was reined up in front of the stand she stumbled, and her rider, John Perfect, who was in the act of dismounting, fell to the ground with his foot hanging in the stirrup. He was helped up and escaped without injury.

The Second Heat.

At 3:50 the horses were called up for the second heat. Treat and his trainer Walsh consulted earnestly with Thad's rider while the old horse was being saddled, and Walsh directed the boy to keep the horse more in the middle of the track, as the inside was too soft for running well. Chamberlain stood by and inspected his horse while the saddle was being put on. The animal had sweat out finely, and appeared to be in excellent trim. A very fair start was given on the first trial. Thad took the lead from the start. It was felt that he was going for the heat, and his backers felt confident. At the quarter he was about three lengths ahead. The other horses were held well in hand, and Daniels was a slow one. The relative positions of the horses were the same until they swung into the home stretch, when Blue passed Daniels. Stevens passed under the wire at the end of the first mile amid great cheering in 2:27, four lengths ahead of Daniels. At the quarter on the second mile Thad was still three lengths ahead and Daniels was still losing ground. The positions were relatively about the same as at the half. The Eastern horses began to close up the gap on the last half of the mile, but Thad retained the lead by two lengths at the end of the mile, which was made in 1:50½. At the quarter on the third mile Thad had retained his advantage. Daniels had closed up the gap on Blue and was even with him. The two gained on Thad, who at the half was but a short length in advance of the others. They swung into the turn in a bunch, but Thad passed under the wire in 1:50, a length in advance, amid great cheering. At the quarter Blue had lapped him, and they ran thus round to the turn with Daniels three lengths behind. At this point Thad began to succumb to his fleet and powerful opponent, and greatly to the disappointment of his friends fell to the rear and failed to recover his lost advantage. The brush between Blue and Daniels down the homestretch was exciting, but Blue outfooted his opponent, and won handsomely by three lengths in 1:54½. Stevens came in under whip about ten lengths behind the winner. Time of the heat, 8:08. The announcement of the time was received with groans and cries of contempt.

The Third Heat.

Notwithstanding the gallant manner in which his horse had won the heat, Chamberlain was far from elated at the prospect. He surveyed his horse critically, and remarked to a Chronicle reporter who congratulated him upon the success of his horse: "Yes, he did well, but I wish it was over." The result showed that his apprehensions in regard to his horse were well founded. At 4:27 the horses were called up for the third heat. Daniels and True Blue had sweat out finely, but the friends of old Thad noticed that his condition was exactly the reverse. His skin was dry as the inside of a powder horn. This was generally noticed, and it was generally conceded, even by the most ardent of the old horse's friends, that his chances of winning the race were slight. But there were a few whose faith in his endurance never failed, and the result showed how well grounded was their confidence. They got away on a very easy start. Thad immediately took the lead, running like a frightened antelope. At the quarter he was

TEN LENGTHS AHEAD,

And at the half twenty lengths. Daniel and Blue running about even. They were now forced to quicken their pace and gained on Stevens, who came under the wire at the end of the first mile in 2:05¼. At the quarter he had increased his lead to two lengths, Blue holding second position and running well in hand. Neither gained any material advantage during the rest of this mile. Stevens came in two lengths ahead, and running very steadily in 1:55. Blue held second place around the turn on the third mile, when he met

WITH THE ACCIDENT

Which will forever disable him. He came nearly to a standstill, and after hobbling a few hundred yards was reined up and his jockey dismounted. Thad flew on like a runaway locomotive amid the wildest cheering and shouts of anticipated victory, and at the half was six lengths ahead of Daniels, his only remaining opponent. He swung into the turn fifteen lengths in the lead and shot by the stand like a wandering comet. Time, 1:5[illegible]. Thad's friends were now frantic with joy. They cheered and stamped and threw up their hats like men beside themselves, although Daniels had closed up a very large part of the gap. Still Thad was from the fastest running of the race, and although he had run ten miles it was evident that he had things his own way for the heat. He held his terrific pace and at the half was seven lengths ahead. Daniels made a desperate effort to retrieve his lost advantage, but the gamesome old son of Langford was too fleet for him, and passed under the wire winner of the heat by six or seven lengths. Time, 7:57.

The excitement at this point was tremendous. Frantic cheers were given, and the California spirit rose to boiling point. The next heat was excitedly awaited. It was fully ten minutes before the cheering subsided sufficiently to admit of the announcement of the result, and it was immediately followed by a fresh tumult of cheers that apparently would never stop.

Fourth Heat.

Both horses got away well together. Thad had a slight advantage in getting around the quarter turn, and on entering the back stretch he had increased his lead to three lengths and was galloping easily. Nothing was to be seen of the horses around the back quarter of the track, it being now five o'clock and the light of day fast fading. On emerging from the back stretch into the straight the horses could be made out against the glow of the setting sun, and Thad, it was perceived, had drawn away from Joe to the extent of eight or nine lengths. He [illegible] past the stand under a slight rein, Charley Ross riding as straight as an arrow, and Thad striding away confidently fifteen or twenty lengths ahead. This gap was not much changed on the second mile. But little or nothing could be made out down the back stretch, already enveloped although there was [illegible]. At the finish of the second mile Daniels had improved his position a little, but this was more to Stevens having slackened pace than to any exertion on the part of Daniels. On coming into view at the opposite end of the track Thad was thundering onward about thirty lengths in front, but Daniels reduced this in the straight to about four or five lengths, which may be taken as the distance separating the horses when they made the turn. Thad again opened the gap out on the back run, and when the horses loomed up against the golden sky in the west Thad was far in advance, and the heat and race manifestly his. Under the wire he dashed in easy strides, a winner by about twelve lengths.

To accurately describe the scene which followed Thad's victory defies word painting. It was undoubtedly the most extravagantly joyous crowd that ever thronged a racetrack on the Pacific coast. A swaying mass filled the back stretch, all eager to pat the winner or catch a glimpse of him. Huzzas rent the air at every part of the track, and hats were thrown up with a recklessness that showed the owners did not set much value on head coverings so long as Thad had won the race. The enthusiasm was in full blast for about ten minutes, and then the crowd began to disperse and to rush for their vehicles.

The time of the final heat was: First mile, 2:00; second, 2:02; third, 2:00; fourth, 2:0[illegible]—8:20[illegible].

TRUE BLUE'S BREAKDOWN.

Immediately upon the remarkable conclusion of the third heat, amid the wild excitement, the thoughts of True Blue's friends turned at once to him. Every one knew that he had broken down. The question was, What is the matter? The first man to reach True Blue after that magnificent racer had given out was A. W. Kelso of Sacramento. George Barbee, the jockey, had dismounted and was examining True Blue's feet when Mr. Kelso came up. "I could have won it in a canter," petulantly exclaimed the jockey. "He's broken his tendons," said Mr. Kelso. "I could have shut them all out," replied the jockey, whose face was flushed with mingled mortification and acute grief. The little jockey stooped and looked earnestly at his horse for a moment, and then said: "I thought he had hurt himself. I don't know how it happened." Meanwhile a great crowd of spectators began to swarm around the couch's wreck. Assistance was freely offered, but no one seemed to know exactly what to do. Poor True Blue stood up on three legs. He kept his right hind leg raised. It pained him terribly to place it on the ground even for one second. In his moment of defeat, and distress and pain, he was a magnificent subject for an animal painter. He seemed gifted with human intelligence. He raised his head and stretched and turned his neck as though trying to follow with his lustrous eyes the gladiators who now distanced him. As gentle as a kitten he allowed any one and every one to approach and pat his black glossy body. There was nothing but expressions of the most

EARNEST SYMPATHY

For the noble stallion. Those who rallied around him seemed to have forgotten all about the race. The scene at this part of the track was picturesque in the extreme. There was a glorious sunset in progress. The amphitheater of treeless hills surrounding the track seemed to be washed with a flood of golden light. The Pacific ocean, as smooth as a mirror and apparently rippleless, added an indescribable charm to the landscape. At this moment all was animation and life at every point except where True Blue stood a hopeless ruin amid his worshipers. From 10,000 throats came a great roar as of dashing of mighty waves on a rock-bound coast. An answering shout came back from the hills and from the multitude thronging the quarter stretch. True Blue pricked up his ears. The people were thundering forth cheer after cheer. They were for the victorious Thad, who was now riding down the homestretch, leading Joe Daniels several lengths. As the sound of the cheering died away, a man pushed his way through the crowd around True Blue and enveloped the plucky little racer with thick blankets. His injuries were of apparently so serious a character that those who had him in charge were afraid to lead him from the track, lest they should injure him more seriously. Every moment the crowd around True Blue grew denser and denser. His trainer, Timothy Robbins, could not even edge his way in. Meanwhile Mr. Chamberlain, the owner, was anxiously waiting outside the gates to see his horse. He had not yet even heard that his horse was injured.

TRUE BLUE'S RETURN.

One of the most memorable scenes of the day happened three-quarters of an hour later. This was the return of True Blue to his stable. The shades of night were gathering rapidly. Already many teams had started for the city, and vehicles began to jostle and crowd each other as they passed outside the gates. Thad Stevens and Joe Daniels had been rung out for the final heat. Mr. Chamberlain had patiently waited nearly an hour for his horse. Nobody around the stables could tell what had become of True Blue. A colored hostler, who had been sent to help to bring him in, returned without being able to find him. Some one asked him where True Blue was. The colored youth created a laugh as he exclaimed in true African style: "Dun know, Sah; dun know. Couldn't see the horse for the people." Presently a gentleman came along and said True Blue had broken his leg.

CHAMBERLAIN'S GRIEF.

Mr. Chamberlain was standing near by with his overcoat on his arm and an anxious look clouding his countenance. As he heard this report he said: "Great God, that cannot be so." Turning to a Chronicle reporter at his side, he added in a sorrowful tone: "That's too bad, ain't it? It's not the money I care about. The money I have lost on the race is nothing to this blow. I'm afraid my True Blue is hopelessly ruined. It's too bad; it's too bad." Mr. Chamberlain is a man of remarkable self-possession, but it was easy to see that the man was deeply moved at the news of the disaster that had overtaken the favorite of his stable. But the news was too true. It was confirmed by the approach of True Blue ten minutes later. As the horse was led along to his stable the air was again rent with prolonged shouts of victory for Thad Stevens and Joe Daniels, were now running the final heat. True Blue was led by his trainer on one side and a colored man on the other. Two gentlemen followed on in the rear, on either flank of the horse. They each held the corner of a blanket. By this means True Blue was assisted along, for it was placed against his hindquarters so as to partly lift him. Every few steps True Blue would stop as if to protest against his being escorted in this manner. A little coaxing, however, and he submitted until he would take it into his head to resist again. As True Blue approached the stable Mr. Chamberlain stood back from the group that gathered about the horse, and looked long and earnestly at him. Then he muttered to himself: "It's awful; it's awful. It's awful." Mr. Robins now commenced to bathe the swollen ankle and to bandage. Mr. Chamberlain sent a messenger to the judges' stand with a request that the judges should ask if there was a veterinary surgeon among the spectators. Mr. Robins, True Blue's trainer, said he believed the tendons of the fetlock were severely strained as to deprive the joint, and that the animal's career as a racer was over. Mr. Chamberlain turned away as evidently from as he heard the sad announcement.

OPINION OF THE OWNER, ETC.

In an interview with a Chronicle reporter, after the race, Chamberlain, the owner of True Blue, said:

"I have been offered $25,000 for True Blue and refused it. The horse can never run again. He is utterly ruined for a race horse. But I would not take $20,000 for him now. He is a noble horse, and I love him for what he could have done but for this unfortunate accident."

Reporter—Is True Blue hurt badly, that he can never recover, Mr. Chamberlain?

Mr. Chamberlain—The horse is utterly broken down. He can never run again. It is too bad. It is awful. But I have got nobody but myself to blame. My friends all advised me not to bring True Blue here and run him in a race of this kind. The horse is one of the finest ever raised. He is only a four year old, and the track is very hard. I think if I had known this I should have taken the advice of my friends, but as I got out here and my horse was here I was not the man to back down. I would have run my horse if I had known he would drop dead at my feet.

HOW THE ACCIDENT HAPPENED.

Reporter—Are you certain that the horse did not strike himself and thus maim himself?

Mr. Chamberlain—I am positive on that point. There was no "interfering." The accident arose from outside causes of some kind.

Reporter—How is the horse doing now?

Mr. Chamberlain—Oh, he is gone. I took Leland Stanford to see him about 7 o'clock. The poor fellow was lying down with his head raised and looking, with those great eyes of his, at his wounded leg. If ever a horse had intelligence True Blue has got it. As he lay there he seemed to say: "What has put me in this condition? It's awful, my boy, it's awful."

Reporter—Mr. Chamberlain, do you honestly think that True Blue would have won the third heat if the accident had not happened?

Mr. Chamberlain—I have no doubt of it. I ordered George just how to drive him and he was obeying instructions. We had the race all in our own hands. If True Blue had not broken down I should have taken back some of your gold to relieve the panic in New York.

THAD'S PRESENT.

At the conclusion of the race Mr. Stagg presented the winner with a handsome gold mounted whip.

Last week a car load of live oysters passed over the Union Pacific for the waters of the Pacific.

Over six hundred Eastern made wagons have been sold at Corinne in the past six months.

There is more grain arriving at Corinne for shipment than the Central Pacific can find cars to fill.

Hardly a day passes but somebody has a horse stolen down near Las Animas in Colorado. One man has lost nine head within sixty days.

Three Italian organ grinders and their monkeys, arrived at Ogden on the 12th, having walked all the way from Leavenworth, Kansas, a distance of over 1,300 miles.

An old man named Buckley, well known in Washington Territory, fell dead on last Saturday night, at Port Townsend. The body was not found until Tuesday morning.

The bark Jenny Pitts, Capt. Blinn, has arrived at Seattle. During the year commencing Nov. 24th, 1872, she has made six trips between San Francisco and Sound ports, seven to Port Ludlow, one to Tacoma, and returned to Seattle, with nine days to spare.

A first mortgage of the Arkansas Valley Railroad line from Kit Carson to Pueblo for the sum of two millions eight hundred thousand dollars to Adolphus Meier and Carlos S. Greeley, trustees, was filed for record with the Recorder of Bent county, on the 4th inst.

We learn from a resident on Skagit river that Mr. R. Stacy, who has a farm in that vicinity, threshed out 2,118 bushels of oats last week from the produce of a thirty-five acre field. All crops of grain are good along the Skagit, but, unfortunately, the potato crop is a failure.

A freshet on Snohomish river has done much damage to loggers. About three million feet of logs have burst away from their booms, and been borne downward toward and into the waters of the Sound. Many of these logs will be recovered, but with no little labor, expense and loss of time.

The Pueblo Chieftain says the need of Colorado is a good number of farmers, practical, industrious, thrifty farmers, men who will till the rich soil of the valleys and mesas of southern Colorado thoroughly and to a purpose. To such men it says southern Colorado offers extraordinary inducements. The soil is wonderfully productive and easily tilled, the climate most favorable and the market for farm products good at home.

The Corinne Reporter says: "H. D. Brewer, Chief of the U. S. Indian Commission, and Shanks, a big gun among em, came down from Fort Hall in a private conveyance. They had been interviewing and holding peace talks with the Shoshone tribe thereabouts, with the end of separating them from the Bannocks and placing them on the reservation of the western Shoshones in the Sagebrush State. When this is accomplished the whole Shoshone tribe will be gathered in one band."

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Buffaloes were plentiful the past season on the Saskatchewan, but the Crees and Blackfeet were going on the war path.

The people living along the line of the Cariboo wagon road are loud in their denunciations upon the state of that great thoroughfare. Several accidents have occurred lately.

A steam fire engine has been ordered by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty on the application of the naval storekeeper to be sent out at once from England for the safety of the Naval Yard at Esquimalt.

The correspondent of the Mainland Guardian telegraphs from Ottawa on the 13th inst. as follows: "I had an interview with Mackenzie yesterday. The railroad will immediately be put on a solid basis, the British Columbian and Manitoba sections will be pushed through first."

Nov. 1st inst. was Black Saturday in the Court of Assize at Victoria. The day was set for sentencing prisoners convicted of crime. John Kingswell, for unnatural crime, got two years; Wm. Waugh, for robbery, got 2 years; Joseph Watmough, indecent assault, 2 years; Chilcolm, manslaughter, 4 years; Geo. Corbett, robbery, 2 years; Indian Bob, unprovoked assault, 6 months; and Wm. Yuen Wong, Hing, [illegible] Wing Hang, unlawful cutting, 5 years each. All are sentenced to hard labor for the terms named.

Mr. [illegible] Roberts and Mr. [illegible] Beresford Hope, two English gentlemen, have just crossed the continent through British territory. Starting from Toronto in June last, they proceeded to Fort Garry via the Dawson route, and starting out from Fort Garry on the [illegible] July, they came through Yellowhead Pass, following the course travelled by Lord Milton, descending the Thompson to Kamloops and arriving at Victoria Nov. 10th in good health and spirits without any mishap. About a foot of snow was met with in the mountains. These gentlemen, who are traveling partly for pleasure and partly for the purpose of reporting upon the colonies as a field for emigration, will take the next steamer to San Francisco and proceed thence to China and Japan, doing Australasia on their way home.

A NOVEL WILL.—A small pass book was filed in the Probate Court yesterday afternoon on two pages of which is written with pencil the following last will and testament:

"My sister's name is Anne Werner, living in Brunswick, Germany. I have money on deposit in Sacramento, some in the Odd Fellows' Bank, some in the Sacramento Bank and some in the City Bank. My cousin's name is C. P. Bardenwerper, to be found in the German Bank of Savings on California street. I wish each to have half.

A. BARDENWERPER.

Witnesses: A. Warthen, James McGovern. October 31, 1873."

Attached to the book is a Notary's certificate executed in Santa Clara county, in which the two witnesses, residents of Gilroy, certify that they saw the deceased with the instrument and he then acknowledged it as his last will and testament.—S. F. Bulletin, Nov. 12.

FRIDAY MORNING NOV 21 1873

WORK FOR CONGRESS

The Forty Third Congress will meet on the second Monday in December. It will be a gathering of unusual interest. In the present disturbed state of trade and finance there is among all classes a general feeling that relief must come from our national legislature. Much of the present distress is directly traceable to pernicious systems of transportation. The producing classes of the great West are looking anxiously to the next Congress for a remedy for their grievances. Just what this remedy shall consist of is not now apparent. There are about as many schools of doctrine in the transportation question as there are in finance. It is said by some that the Government should own what it builds, that the people should control what they pay for. This is the theory of General Butler and Senator Carpenter, and it is heartily endorsed by the Republic, an influential political magazine published in Washington. By others it is urged that Congress need only exercise its Constitutional prerogative of regulating commerce among the States. A general law fixing a uniform freight tariff and providing severe penalties for extortion and overcharges will, it is claimed, be sufficient to curb the grasping railway power. However much justice there may be in the claim that the Government built many of the roads and it should, therefore, operate them, it would be well to consider long and thoughtfully the grave possibilities which might follow the placing this source of enormous patronage in the hands of any political party. This question of cheap transportation is the most complex as well as the most important of all those that will confront the next Congress. Some kind of legislation must be had on matters of finance. Throughout the country there is a growing demand for a return to specie payments. Schemes for resumption are innumerable and the probabilities in this direction cannot now be computed.

The Forty Second Congress was so engrossed in contemplating its own rascality that it neglected Louisiana and Utah. It is to be hoped that its successor will do something towards guaranteeing a republican government in Louisiana and establishing in Utah a judicial institution which shall not be utterly powerless. Among other liberal bequests from the Forty-Second to the Forty-Third Congress we note Gen Butler's plan for the distribution of the Geneva award and the settlement of the bothersome Southern Claims. Mr Creswell will renew his recommendation of postal telegraph and the establishment of a system of postoffice savings banks. The complications thrust upon us by the capture of the Virginius and the execution following it, will probably be the first and most exciting theme of discussion. In this startling exigency the country has need of men of sound judgment and sober discretion to the end that nothing shall be done in haste or from unworthy motives, that the national honor shall be shielded with becoming dignity while careful regard is had for the weakness of the offending republic. Perhaps no Congress has ever met upon which rested responsibilities so heavy as those we have mentioned. In meeting these, the highest order of prudence and sagacity will be required. The people stand ready to support and encourage every effort for the reform of abuses, and they will not balk at radical methods when the necessity therefor is apparent.

It is equally true that the people are watchful and suspicious of jobs. Party leaders have enjoyed a superior degree of popular confidence, but they have in very many instances, forfeited that confidence by gross misdemeanors. The too trustful masses relaxed their vigilance for a little time, falling off into a dreamy trustfulness from which they awoke just in time to rescue some of their dearest liberties. Indications of renewed activity among the jobbers are not wanting. The Forty-Third Congress will be tempted just as its predecessors have been tempted. The Goat Island scheme is to be revived, notwithstanding the fact that the people of California have repeatedly condemned it and censured their representatives who attempted to consummate it. There are well-defined rumors hinting at the assumption by the General Government of debts of the Southern States. Congress will be asked to guarantee the three and a half per cent bonds of the Texas Pacific Railway, and the demand for subsidies for steamship lines will be renewed.

For information on this subject of prospective jobs our readers are referred to the Washington letter of Gen H V Boynton, a well known correspondent to the Cincinnati Gazette. There has been a time when the utterance of such plain words by a Republican journal of eminence would have been deemed rank heresy. Times are changed and for the better. The taxpaying masses of the Republican party realize the imperative necessity for an exposure of official shortcomings.

The Board of Public Works of Washington City have created a debt of twenty millions of dollars. The District finds itself unable to meet the demand [illegible] extravagance and Congress will be asked to assume the indebtedness.

Amid this multitude of plans for grabbing the people's money it will not be strange if some succeed, but the tide of the recent elections sets strongly against all of them, and if the members of the Forty Third Congress will but respect the unmistakable wish [illegible] hope to see [illegible] legislation rid itself of much of the [illegible] brought upon it by unscrupulous and dishonest legislation.

A BETTER SENTIMENT

Our morning dispatches indicate that the first angry whiff of passion has passed over and public sentiment in the East is cooling down in the Virginius affair. This is as it should be. The Castelar Government is disposed to do what is right we are told. Certainly we can ask no more. After our Government has had a fair opportunity to settle the unfortunate difficulty by peaceful methods it will appear most likely, that those journals which have been clamoring for Spanish blood were a little too hasty. This hotheadedness in dealing with weak and comparatively defenseless nations, sometimes has the appearance of bullying. We are a peaceable people and do not desire war. When it is forced upon us we can fight as the whole world knows. Gen Longstreet's 2,000 volunteer annexationists will not be needed. Let us have peace.

SENSIBLE WORDS

The New York Times of Nov 9th takes a common sense view of the war cry which was raised by certain Cuban knights of the carpet when the news of the Virginius affair reached that city. We quote a paragraph:

It is a pity that the cause of Cuban independence cannot be prosecuted with a little less passion and a little more discretion. There can be no question about the barbarous haste with which the shooting of the patriot generals was determined on, and it is extremely probable that in the capture of the Virginius and subsequent acts the Spanish authorities have put themselves in the wrong. The Cuban Junta ought to make the most of this opportunity to bring the question of Cuban insurgency within the range of international discussion. To talk wildly about avenging the acts done at Santiago de Cuba and to proceed to the open enlistment of American citizens for that purpose may be the natural enough result of patriotic indignation, but is hardly the way that countries are made free. Our Government is as much bound to do all it can to prevent its harbors from being used for fitting out filibustering expeditions as it is to demand justice from Spain for any outrage that may have been committed on our flag. The Cubans should be careful to complicate the two duties as little as possible at the present juncture.

One of the most astonishing political events of modern days is the conduct of Worcester in the recent Massachusetts election. It is known all over that State as the chief stronghold of Republicanism in Massachusetts. But it gave Gaston a majority of 1,618 over Gov Washburn. We notice too that Hoyt of Athol who achieved some prominence two years ago by introducing into the Massachusetts General Court the famous resolution of censure on Senator Sumner was defeated this year by a large majority, although his county is strongly Republican. These things do not denote as some would suppose, a disintegration of the party in the Old Bay State. They are simply warnings to General Butler—and to all whom it may concern.

Something has got to be done—to use a cant phrase—to stop this "speaking out in meetin'" now so common among the old line Republican papers of the East and the West. The bold declarations of the New York Times, Harpers Weekly and a score of other influential party journals have awakened echoes out on the prairies. The Cleveland Leader, a staunch Republican paper, remarks as follows to-wit: "The time has come for a general reform in the manner of doing the public business. There has been not only too much corrupt legislation and too much stealing, but a too general looseness. The people are now fully aware of this and demand that it shall cease. The eyes of their constituents will closely watch members of the coming Congress. Woe unto them if they are found wanting."

The New York Tribune, of November 10th states that up to that date the President had made no tender of the Chief Justiceship. Although several journals in and about Washington City are urging the appointment of several prominent gentlemen there is good reason for the belief that President Grant will defer any action until the Forty Third Congress shall have met.

SUMNER AND BRADLAUGH

AN OLD FASHIONED SPEECH FROM THE SENATOR—REMARKS BY MR BRADLAUGH

The usual weekly dinner of the Massachusetts Club, in Boston, on Saturday, November 1st, was made notable by the presence of Senator Sumner and Charles Bradlaugh. Among the other guests were Vice President Wilson and ex Governor Claflin. The Boston Times gives this report of the speeches:

After the removal of the cloth speeches were delivered by several gentlemen, those of Senator Sumner and Mr Bradlaugh being received with especial warmth. Mr Sumner's speech was full of his old animation and vigor. Referring to Mr Bradlaugh he said that whoever took upon himself as he had done to advance republican principles in other countries was bringing those countries side by side with our own and indirectly helping us to maintain them ourselves. Republicanism is daily asserting its strength in Europe and mark my words that strength will go on until all Europe is Republican as America is to-day. [Cheers.] When I speak of republicanism I do not mean the mere name of a republic. I have in my mind the two fundamental principles contained in the great Declaration of our forefathers, by one of which the equal rights of all are asserted, and by the other the duty of the State to prepare every man to exercise these privileges. That is my idea of a republic, and such a government my friends has yet to come to Europe. The speaker then alluded to the condition of France and characterized the Comte de Chambord's attempt to win the throne as a conspiracy which he always felt was bound to fail.

Speaking of Spain he eulogized the noble conduct of Castelar as worthy of the greatest admiration. Alluding to the course of his own life he was deeply moved. When I think, he said, of the terrible struggles of the past being in the presence of those with whom I have always agreed and whom I have uniformly [illegible] I am full of hope for the future. When I look back to the past and call back the terrible struggle we passed through before the war, more terrible even than the war itself, I am filled with the highest hope for the future of this country. He confidently hoped thus to secure the passage of his bill for the equal rights of the colored man everywhere and under all circumstances, whether he was a waiter [illegible] a passenger [illegible] car [illegible] [Applause.]

He referred also to his bill for specie payment in similar terms. I do not care what becomes of myself but I care for principles. It may seem to you that I am speaking of things which I have often spoken of before. Perhaps, however, you have not [illegible] [illegible] my friend [illegible] [illegible] represents the present [illegible] old friend [illegible] high [illegible] life long principle [illegible] [illegible] Mr Bradlaugh [illegible] public principle [illegible] sympathized with [illegible] applause [illegible] three rousing cheers.

Mr Bradlaugh then made a [illegible] in which he acknowledged the [illegible] received [illegible] people of this country and especially [illegible] [illegible] success of the republican movement [illegible] He received an ovation [illegible] scarcely less enthusiastic than that given to Senator Sumner.

The Port Townsend Argus of Nov [illegible]th says: The Peruvian ship Rosalie, Capt [illegible] Gregory, which loaded at Port Discovery and sailed thence [illegible] with lumber for Iquique, put back to that port on Saturday in distress, having lost overboard her deck load and ship stores [illegible] three days after leaving Cape Flattery. We are informed that there was some difficulty at Port Discovery at the time of sailing, that there was no mate or other officer than [illegible] and that the ship went [illegible] short of water. Under the circumstances the crew objected to go to sea [illegible] it is stated that [illegible] were forced to go.

CITY.

AN OLD FRIEND UNDER STROKES OF —A Cincinnati exchange speaks as follows concerning an old and favorably known former citizen of Portland Rev Thomas H Pearne, D D has just returned to this country from Kingston Jamaica after an absence of three years. He was United States Consul in Kingston Jamaica We are glad to note a marked improvement in his health. His severe pioneer work for fourteen years in Oregon and the still more exciting and exhausting labor he bestowed in reconstructing our Church in Tennessee for four or five years had entirely prostrated his health His residence in Jamaica has had a most happy effect in restoring his vigor and as it is impossible for him when able to work to be long idle he has come back to this country to enter upon service for God and humanity He has accepted a commission as District Secretary of the American Colonization Society for all the country west of the Alleghanies and south of the Potomac—a wide field, certainly His headquarters are fixed in this city where he has come to reside with his family We learn that the society propose to continue their great work of building up on the west coast of Africa a permanent and aggressive Christian civilization which shall ultimately extend eastward until it spans the continent They propose to do this by sending, as they are able, picked men from this country, who will make their influence felt for God and right in that dark continent In this way the Colonization Society hopes to do something toward that mighty compensation which the United States owes to unhappy Africa for the wrongs she has suffered at our hands for two centuries Dr. Pearne is expected to impress the people of his immense district with the claims of the American Colonization Society upon their sympathies and support He will, we understand be ready to present the cause of African Colonization in the pulpit and through the press as opportunity may serve

DEATH OF MRS ANNA WYCHE.—Concerning the sad demise of this lady, the Advocate says "Only a short time since we announced the departure of this estimable lady and her daughter May to a more genial climate in quest of health With extreme sadness we announce to-day the sorrowful intelligence of her death at San Francisco on Friday last For many years Mrs Wyche has been afflicted with asthma The death of her beautiful daughter Stella followed recently with that of her beloved husband, Judge J E Wyche of Washington Territory, were blows too severe perhaps for her pure spirit sanctified by afflictions through the blood of the Lamb has gone to unite with the loved ones above Mrs Wyche was a lady of cultivation and refinement full of Christian kindness and hospitality She was a daughter of Mrs Bancroft of this city, and will be sadly missed from a very large circle of friends and acquaintances in Oregon and Washington Territory

FOOT MASHED —Mark H Ward, a young man who has been employed as brakeman on the Oregon & California Railroad for more than two years, had his left foot severely crushed yesterday morning at Albany One of the cars passed partially over the foot, dislocating several of the small bones He came down yesterday evening on the passenger train, and is now in East Portland The foot was put in position by Drs. Rice and Boughton, at Albany and on arriving here Dr Raffety made an examination of the limb No bones were found broken The injuries are not so serious as were at first supposed The young man will not be able to be around for several weeks He had on a very heavy pair of boots which in all probability prevented his foot being crushed off

LIST OF LETTERS —The following letters are held for postage at the office at this place Miss R Moorhoun, Cottonwood creek Oregon Flint, Dearbourn & Co, Portland Miss H Lent Peekskill, Oregon, Samuel M Doan Willow Center, Oregon, John Archcraft Atchison Oregon Miss Sarah Thomas Farman Station, Balm Creek, Oregon, J T Ahlgren Constitover Oregon, Nortamerika District Attorney, Salem, Oregon; J Phillips Belize Br Honduras H Biling, St. Paul, Minn, Harper Bros New York; Miss M. INDIAN SUMMER —In speaking of the present fine weather the Sentinel truly says "The far Northwest has been favored by Providence with the most delightful autumn known for many years Since the first part of October till now the weather has been clear and fine Though the nights are cold, the days are pleasant, sometimes even very warm What a difference to the weather experienced in the Northern and Western States where storms snow and frost have alternated for several weeks past. The Northwest cannot be equaled for the salubrity of its climate and the fruitfulness of its soil"

EXAMINING THE ROLL —In compliance with instructions issued by the U S District Court providing for the manner of drawing and summoning grand and trial jurors, the U S Marshal, Register in Bankruptcy and Clerk of the U S Court, were engaged yesterday in examining the tax rolls The rules of the Court as lately amended, require that these officers shall examine the tax-rolls, and select therefrom 50 persons permanent and reliable residents of the county, who are to serve as jurors Most of the day was employed in examining the rolls and making the selections

CHARGED WITH LARCENY —A young man named W H Roberts, who resides in East Portland was arrested last evening on the charge of larceny The complaint charges Roberts with having hired a team in this city of Messrs Kyle & Wilmer, which he drove to Oregon City about two weeks since and while there sold to certain parties Roberts gives his version of the story, which is quite at variance with any intention of committing crime The matter will be examined into this morning in the Police Court

LITTLE MAY CHARTERED —The handsome little schooner Flite May has we learn been chartered by Messrs Corbitt & Macleay to carry a load of grain to San Francisco Yesterday she began to load with wheat at the O S N Co's wharf She will take away about 100 tons of grain This will be the Flite May's maiden effort to breast old Neptune It is hoped that she will successfully buffet the billows and ride gallantly into port

THANKSGIVING SERVICES —There will be a Union Thanksgiving service held in the Presbyterian Church of this city next Thursday November 27th beginning at 11 A M A discourse appropriate to the occasion will be preached by the Rev A L Lindsley D D The following congregations will unite in this service The Baptist Presbyterian Congregationalist and Methodist The public are cordially invited

FOREWARNED, FOREARMED

THE COMING JOBS—WHAT THE FORTY THIRD CONGRESS WILL BE ASKED TO DO—THE GIANTS AMONG LOBBY SCHEMES

[Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette]

WASHINGTON Oct 18 1873

The question is asked daily from all parts of the land What course should Congress take in regard to financial matters? The daily business and the daily talk at the Treasury Department furnish one answer taking precedence there of all others And this is that economy should be the central thought of all congressional legislation Unless it is there are breakers ahead where the next Congress will inevitably go down You can hear much at the department among its various officials of the causes of panics, of shrinkage in values of inflation free banking, specie payments bank reserves exports imports and balances of trade But when the question of remedies arises the one word which the Treasury signification suggests as the stepping stone to all relief through legislation is economy

In six weeks Congress will meet and countless financial propositions will be presented It will be weeks and perhaps months before any one of them can be matured and passed But from the day when members begin to gather here they will be beset on all sides by the agents of schemes which for number and for magnitude have not been equaled at any previous opening of Congress A few perhaps are meritorious or would be if the national debt were paid and the country were prosperous But most of them should be stamped out upon their first appearance

Among those which are definitely developed are the proposed systems of canals between the East and the West the refunding of the cotton tax the payment for property destroyed in the South during the war assuming the scandalous expenditures of the Board of Public Works in this District purchasing an Executive Park from speculators who have already obtained possession of the proposed site and the erection of an Executive Palace These are a few of the giants of the lobby and all of them suitors Following in their train and bargaining with them for mutual support and assistance are a swarm of lesser schemes each calling for their hundreds of thousands—and robbers, nearly all

Water communication wherewith to move the crops—a phrase which might appropriately be inscribed on the Treasury key in the seal of the Department—may be desirable and some day in the future it may be proper for the Government to undertake to establish it but the plans which the lobby are now busily engaged in working up are such as should for the coming session be laid by without ceremony

The contract work about which all the others revolve is the Virginia water line or James River and Kanawha Canal Support for this work is being sought among members of the next Congress Its friends expect to carry all the Southern seaboard States and the influence of the Ohio valley These are called upon to support it as a work of local importance Next comes the trading of votes with the friends of a Niagara ship canal and those of a canal at the mouth of the Mississippi Each of these independently will bargain with every little scheme that members outside of the territory interested in the great ones may have on hand, and so the success of any one involves the cottoning through of many One hundred millions is a low estimate of the sum which the passage of any one of these schemes will take from the Treasury when the associated schemes which the adoption of any one will carry through are considered

The refunding of the cotton tax is in every sense a job If it were repaid there are few instances where first holders would receive the least benefit A few men have purchased nearly all these claims at merely nominal rates and with the millions they represent they expect to buy their way through the next Congress They have had and will again have a powerful lobby employing much legal talent, and all other means known to such laborers in the Washington field These claims are estimated at from forty to sixty millions, and such a fine margin for contingent fees is regarded by its friends as the most promising feature of the situation No honest committee can afford to report favorably upon it and no honest man in either house can afford to vote for it

The very general payment for property destroyed in the South during the Rebellion is of a character with the cotton claim in that it is expected that the entire Southern vote can be obtained for it and that the friends of other measures will be willing to exchange their votes and following for the return the Southern men can make The scheme as it now stands ought not to have an hour in the court of either House

But if there be degrees in the unscrupulousness of the lobby that which will unite all that is taught in its lowest and in its highest schools will be one under the leadership and control of the Board of Public Works of this District Without law and in the face of law they made the Capital bankrupt True they have beautified it, and it has taken long strides toward becoming the most beautiful city in the land Members will be driven over its leagues of splendid pavement and dined and wined in the club house of the ring and in magnificent residences which have been built out of the people's money and besought in the name of the country to pay for this patriotic beautifying of its capital and to carry the comprehensive plan to completion If Congress could punish this Board of Public Works and all their abettors and scatter them from the Capital as Tweed and his associates were driven from New York and use their estates to reimburse the thousands of small property holders whom they have ruined or crippled then there might be equity in assuming a portion of this debt as a measure of relief to those who have so severely suffered by these agents of Congress and of the Executive But to vote them money as matters are now organized either for past or future expenses is to take from the Treasury and give to the Tweeds and Halls and Gurneys of this Washington ring the lineal descendant and only living worthy representative of its deceased and disgraced ancestor

And as if to silence all objections members of Congress in their rides and at the club house will be told that President Grant indorses the board So much the worse for the President Besides he will not be a candidate for re-election next October the members thus addressed will And if any of them think they can make answer to their constituents for voting the millions the board will ask by telling that no city on the continent compares with it now as a place to trot horses in they will probably doubt the soundness of their excuses when the returns come in

A half million at least for an Executive Park and a half million more to begin an Executive Palace in it such is the lowest estimate for a job which [illegible] of our coming honorables—already honored with five thousand apiece for their summer's work—will doubtless feel in the present state of financial affairs that a White House upon which about one hundred thousand dollars has been expended within the year and which is only occupied for [illegible] months annually will do for the present especially since the compensation [illegible] has been doubled The question of this park and this palace can not [illegible] measures and so can be freely discussed by the timid

Such are [illegible] of the great plans by which the lobby in combination expect to take toll [illegible] from the Treasury Whatever Congress may do to comply with [illegible] and most [illegible] the [illegible] Department [illegible] the expenditure And the men in the coming Congress who [illegible] legislation [illegible] jobs of every kind [illegible] appropriation [illegible] with all the men whom the people [illegible]

OREGON

Salem people don't like tone of their new fire alarm bell

Several cases of typhoid fever are reported in the vicinity of Albany

The first ocean steamer to tie to Flavel's new dock was the California hence for Sitka on the 17th

A reverend and popular gentleman of Lafayette has purchased a pony which he thinks can outrun anything in the county 400 yards

Lebanon Linn county has a population of 150 It is a pleasant little town and is the seat of the Santiam Academy which under the management of Prof Nicker on is said to flourishing finely

Application will soon be made for a mail route from Astoria to Westport overland by way of Klaskanine Mishawaka Walker's and the upper settlement on the Nehalem The distance is sixty two miles, and the petition will be for weekly service

Henry Martin met with a hard misfortune last week in having his team stolen He took a load of household goods for a man who was moving over to Tillamook and on the journey camped at the summit of the mountains He staked the horses near where he slept, at night but in the morning the team was gone and so far he has failed to find any trace of them or get any clue to their whereabouts

The Statesman notes the departure for Umatilla of Mr Rollin P Saxe, where he is going to deliver several head of the Saxe Brothers fine Kentucky short horn cattle, which these gentlemen have sold to parties in that section Mr Saxe will spend considerable time traveling through Eastern Oregon and Idaho, and if indications are good the other brother Mr H P Saxe now in Salem will follow with the remainder of their stock, which they have in the stables at that place

From all parts of Marion county says the Statesman come good news as to the fall sowing of wheat here Large acreage is sown and owing to the excellent condition of the land, from the late seasonable weather the fields assume a living green The farmers are using this fine fall weather which indeed reminds them of Indian Summer in their Father Land to plow deeply and turn up the "fog devil" from beneath There is everything to encourage them and cause them to develop the vast agricultural resources of this charming and extensive valley "Truth crushed to earth will rise" Though our wheat and flour may have been marked and shipped in days past as "California Breadstuffs" yet the vast quantities of most superior flour and wheat sent from Portland to European and Chinese ports this year will fully establish the high reputation of our mills and the quality of flour and wheat But one thing we need—extensive home manufactories and home patronage of all our industrial pursuits

Rev I D Driver writing from Salem, describes a scene which occurred in the Methodist Church at that place last Sunday night, while a collection was being taken to clear the society from indebtedness He says Sister Waller was in the evening congregation in deep mourning for her husband In youth she had sacrificed home friends and worldly comforts for Christ and coming to Oregon when it was a wilderness, assisted in erecting the standard of the cross Through long years of toil she watched the steps of progress as barbarism receded before them She had stood by the side of her husband as he toiled in the great work of Christianizing the pioneer and the savage She had seen the changes pass over the manly form of her husband as he gradually yielded to the telling blows of toil and time transforming his raven locks into snowy whiteness And with a reputation as pure as his whitened locks he had sunk down at her side under burdens too heavy for his advanced age, leaving her to weep and rejoice at his last utterance, "let me into eternal rest" Knowing her history one would think she had paid enough, but she felt not so These years of toil and sacrifice had only increased her zeal and strengthened her love for her Master And rising slowly, she said to the Secretary "put down $1,000 for me and $500 apiece for my three children" Like lightning passing through a cloud, it went through the congregation and tears fell like rain

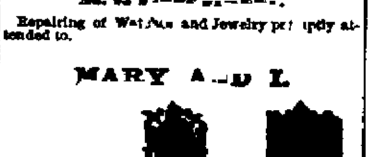
MARY AND I.



'Twas evening in May, and the soft zephyr sighed
Through branches low bending above
My Mary and I, as we wandered along
And whispered of beauty and love
We'll make us a nest like the birdlings I said
"And never shall part any more."
"Oh yes" she replied and can furnish it nice
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

"Fair creature there's many a wealthier man
Would gladly have you for a bride
But no one can love you more fondly than I—
My treasure, my beauty, and pride!
Oh had I a mansion with carpets of gold
And silver I'd cover the floor!"
But, smiling she said You can purchase the best
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

"I'll spread you a couch upon which to recline
When evening shall call us to rest.
Of the feeliest down—but she said with a sigh
"I like a hair mattress the best."
"Then so it shall be, love and tables inlaid,
And seats from some far distant shore."
Oh no she exclaimed, They have elegant sets
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

"But Mary, alas, I must sadly confess
My means are but slender as yet
To furnish a house in the style you demand
Would hopelessly plunge me in debt—
To ask you to share my poor lodgings and board
Is something that I should deplore.
She said with a smile, You can buy very cheap
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

"To-morrow then love let us journey along
To the corner of Alder and Front street—
'Tis numbers 98 and 100 (river side)
Where lovers so happily meet
How many fond souls might be severed for years
From those they so fondly adore
Were it not for the beautiful furniture they have
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE

They have marble top bureaus and elegant sets
Of bedroom furniture, now
With center tables and what nots and mirrors great
And an endless variety of chairs not a few
They do cash business, and with money in hand
To purchase every style of furniture, lower
Are able to supply all the public demand
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

We went Mary and I and can I ever forget
The pleasure that beamed in her face
As she gazed at the marvels of beauty displayed
In HURGREN & SHINDLER'S place
We furnished our home in an elegant style
Been married a twelvemonth or more
And Mary's still delighted to see her table

THE HELEN JEWETT TRAGEDY

AN INTERESTING STORY OF ITS SEQUEL

The Chicago Tribune in writing of the connection of Joseph P. Clarkson, a candidate for a local office, with a certain case of Hill against Hoxie, tells this story of the sequel of the Helen Jewett murder:

Helen Jewett was a beautiful woman of [illegible] and the supposed mistress of Richard P. Robinson, a young man of a good Connecticut family. One night her house was burned down and Helen Jewett murdered. Her body was found in the ruins. It was supposed that the house was fired to obliterate all traces of the deed. Robinson was arrested on suspicion and placed on trial for murder. He was befriended in his trouble by Joseph Hoxie, his employer, then a prominent merchant in New York and subsequently a member of Congress—now deceased. Robinson was acquitted. Another indictment was found against him for arson, and Hoxie and his other friends persuaded him to fly to Texas, which had not then been acquired by the United States. Other parties in the meantime had represented that Robinson had embezzled the funds of Hoxie while in his employ. Robinson denied this, but, grateful for Hoxie's friendship, he insisted that the latter should take certificates for a half-section of land in Illinois which Robinson had bought with his own money, and hold them until he had satisfied himself that Robinson's accounts were all right. At all events this was the theory of Clarkson's clients in the lawsuit. Robinson then went away to Texas and was never again seen by his former friends and associates. It is supposed that Hoxie, upon a subsequent examination of Robinson's accounts, found them to be correct, for he paid no more attention to the certificates in his possession and never took any steps to get a patent for the land. The property, which is located in Hyde Park Township, was up to within a few years a mere swamp, and of no great value. It was sold for taxes, and bought by J. Y. Scammon. It is probably worth $100,000 at the present time. A few years ago George W. Hill, a lawyer of this city, in going over the records, discovered the condition of the property, and concluded the title was still in Hoxie or his heirs. He went to New York and procured a quit claim deed from Hoxie, then a man seventy-five years old, along with the original certificates, which were found in an old safe, where they had lain some thirty years. After the fire Hill commenced proceedings in Circuit Court of Cook county against Hoxie and others, including Robinson and his heirs, to settle the title in him.

In the meantime, Robinson had died in Texas and made a will leaving the property to a family named McKay, who had been kind to him in his exile. It came to the knowledge of a Texas lawyer that Hill had commenced suit to bar the Robinson heirs from claiming the property, and he informed the McKay family of it. The McKays' employed this lawyer, Roots by name, who wrote to the Second National Bank of this city, asking a reference to a competent solicitor to undertake the defense of their claims. The Second National Bank recommended its own lawyer, J. P. Clarkson. Clarkson's first concern was to ascertain whether the McKay heirs could prove that the transfer of Robinson's certificates of purchase of the Hyde Park property was in the nature of security and not an absolute conveyance of the fee. It was remembered that Robinson had a sister who had remained faithful to her brother during his trial, and who might have knowledge of his transactions with Hoxie. After considerable search throughout the country this sister, Mrs. Still by name, was found in St. Louis, where she was a professed spiritualistic medium, though a well educated woman, and was practicing as a physician and living in very straitened circumstances. When Mrs. Still was found, she told a straightforward story, alleging that the property had been transferred to secure Hoxie against any loss that he might incur from Robinson's suspected defalcation. She said that after Robinson's acquittal of the charge of murder, Hoxie, Robinson, and Mrs. Still went to Connecticut. It was here that the transfer was made, immediately before Robinson left for Texas. Mrs. Still has a married daughter living in New York, Mrs. Brooks. The McKay heirs, conscious that they had no claim of blood relationship upon Robinson's property, and that his will cut off Mrs. Still and her daughter (his heirs-at-law), promised to give Mrs. Brooks $3,000 and 5 per cent of the value of all the property of Robinson's which they might recover. There was nothing corrupt in this transaction in the eyes of the law, and it was a matter of simple justice in the eyes of humanity. The other side of the case, however, saw the necessity of impeaching Mrs. Still's evidence, and, with the help of the St. Louis Chief of Police, secured the services of a detective to work on Mrs. Still. This man, by feigning sympathy with her spiritualistic practices, ingratiated himself into her confidence, and persuaded her that the McKay heirs did not intend to keep faith with her, nor give her daughter any portion of the money promised. He then suggested to her to offer to sell out to the other side for $2,000 cash. She followed this suggestion. When Clarkson ascertained that his only witness had been tampered with, and that the other side could now break down the evidence she had previously given, he immediately withdrew from the case. The McKay heirs subsequently abandoned their defense for the same reason, and a decree was entered in favor of Hill. Hill afterwards brought suit in ejectment against Scammon, who was holding under a tax-deed, and secured a judgment in his favor. Scammon carried the case to the Supreme Court, where it is still pending.

This is the history in substance of the Hill vs. Hoxie case and Clarkson's connections therewith.

TWO LEGAL GIANTS AFRAID OF A CONTEST IN COURT

A correspondent of the Portfolio sends the following: Old Squire Gerrish of Newport is a genial soul who has a host of legal reminiscences. An intimate friend of Webster, Edward Everett and Rufus Choate, and a law partner of Caleb Cushing, he had a rare opportunity of collecting anecdotes and details that are very interesting now. When connected with Cushing, a time came when those two Titans, Cushing and Choate, were on opposite sides in an important suit. On the day when the case was called the court room was crowded. A battle between such men was a novelty even in that epoch of brains. To the amazement of the Judge, jury and spectators, both Cushing and Choate were somewhat anxious for a continuance—in other words, for a postponement of trial. As a usual thing both gentlemen were always anxious to force a case to trial, being in a state of chronic preparation, as Webster once said in speaking of Choate. In going out of court, says Gerrish, I met Choate and said, "How is it that you are ready for a continuance to-day? It is a little odd of you."

Choate replied, "Oh, I am a little pressed with business, and can afford to let this case stand over."

Said I, "Choate, that is sheer nonsense. I'll tell you what the matter is. You are afraid of Cushing."

"So I am," was the reply, "and I am not ashamed to own it, neither."

"Well, well," said I, "This is pretty good. The idea of Rufus Choate frightened! What on earth do you fear in Cushing?"

"Gerrish, I will tell you. I am afraid of his overwhelming knowledge of the law."

In the afternoon Cushing came into the office. I went for him at once. "Caleb, what was the matter to-day? Why didn't you insist on trying that case?"

"Oh," he replied, "the weather is warm and we have much to attend to, and I didn't care to hurry matters."

"Now, Cushing, be honest; were you not a little afraid of Choate?"

"Well, Gerrish, to be candid about it, I was. Are you satisfied now?"

I then inquired what he feared Choate for. "Do you think," said I, "that he knows any more law than you do?"

"No, I do not," was the answer, "but I'm afraid of that devil's infernal influence with a jury, right or wrong."

And there it was. The two men had been so often associated that each knew the other's strong points and felt timid.

An English paper relates the following curious incident: It is now eleven years since a live bee got into the ear of Mr. Reed, the baker of the Woburn workhouse. A few days since, when his ear was syringed, extraordinary to relate, forth came the bee, in as perfect a state as when alive, even to the wings, the wax of the ear having preserved it from decay.

There is apparently but little movement in financial circles connected with our home market. The indication of a scarcity of the supply to give quickness to the main exports is quite manifest, and rumors reach us that some prominent houses are refusing to make orders. Heavy requirements are met with difficulty, and the demand for loans on real estate and other collaterals is becoming more frequent. The banks have a limited supply of funds available for the accommodation of their regular customers, but the heavier draught made by the grain men's outgoing interests has very nearly exhausted the capital which is usually offered on extraordinary occasion.

A balance sheet issued by the Sub-Treasurer at San Francisco shows the business done on this coast by that officer for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1873. It has not been published in this state, and we append a synopsis:

The amount of gold coin paid into the banks of San Francisco by the Sub-Treasurer per telegraphic transfer on New York, from January 1 to October 10 1873, was 4,800,000. In addition the sum of $[illegible] 000,000 in gold coin was sent to New York by special car August 8th, making a total of $[illegible],800,000 disbursed from the office since January 1st. During the same interval the collections from duties on imports amounted to $[illegible],863,[illegible]

English Wheat Market.

The following information is furnished by a private circular from London under date of October 24th. The tendency was firmer for wheat cargoes arrived, 58s 6d having been paid for a cargo of old Milwaukee spring, and 60s 6d continental for a small cargo of Californian. For Californian on passage the quotations were 63s a 65s, for cargoes near at hand buyers at 62s 6d, prompt or shipping 63s sellers; buyers to Liverpool direct at [illegible] all the year [illegible] to Liverpool. The imports of wheat and flour into the United Kingdom in the first seven weeks of the present cereal year, from the 1st of September to the 18th of October, were 1,[illegible] qrs against 2,01[illegible] qrs for the same time last year. The stocks in the country underwent a diminution of [illegible] qrs for the seven weeks this year, as compared with the same period last year. The exports last year were only [illegible] qrs, while this season they have amounted to 13 per cent of the imports. In Paris Eight Marks Flour on the spot had improved [illegible] ℔ sack, and for delivery in the first four months of 1874 1 fr [illegible]. At Lille prices were [illegible] ℔ 100 kil dearer. The arrivals at Marseilles for the week had been large, viz: 107,000 qrs. The Wheat cargoes on passage to the United Kingdom numbered 2[illegible], estimated to carry about 1,016,470 qrs, against 235 cargoes, or equal to 1,3[illegible],000 qrs for the same time last year. There were only 39 cargoes on the way from the South Russian ports, against 167 at the same time last year. In Liverpool, Glasgow and some other places, there had been a better demand for Flour, causing a slight advance in prices. Malting Barley had rallied in price, and frequent fluctuations were likely to continue. The imports into the United Kingdom for the four weeks ending October 18th were Wheat, 3,290,174 cwt., Barley, 7[illegible]; Oats, 358,981; Maize 1,[illegible],691; Flour [illegible],114.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The market is decidedly in a mixed and uncertain condition at this writing, though holders are firm and generally confident. The high quotations given the first of the week have been reduced by recent transactions, in which parties well posted have sold common lots for a decline of ten cents per cental. We are unable, with our present means of information, to arrive at a definite conclusion upon the [illegible] of the apparent [illegible] that prevails among buyers, but that many of them are exceedingly backward just now is certain. The few transactions made are based on about $1 90 per cental.

FLOUR—The receipts of the week, specially under review this evening, have been quite large, and quotations are firm. The best brands of extra now command $6 50 per bbl., while lower brands are quick sale at $5[illegible]. Extra superfine is selling in large lots at $5 ℔ bbl. The ship Cutwater will carry a large lot for Liverpool direct.

OATS—The market has been steady for a fortnight past at 45c ℔ bushel, with a very fair inquiry on part of buyers. The receipts, owing to the great amount of attention paid to wheat, have not been so large as usual, and the supply now on hand here is light.

BARLEY—Though a few shipments are being made, the principal demand is for local consumption, and that is liberally supplied at $1 10 a 1 15 per cwt.

FEED—There was a noticeable decline three days ago, from which there now seems to be a disposition to react, and prices are firm. We quote bran at $1[illegible] ℔ ton, middlings, $22a25; shorts $25a28.

HAY—The supply has been increased by considerable receipts within the week past, and sales are hardly so quick. Quotations are furnished at $12 50 a 14 ℔ ton for baled timothy, and $10a12 for loose from wagons.

POTATOES—We notice very full receipts, and jobbers complain of dull sales at 30a40c ℔ bushel. The supply at present is rather in excess of the regular demand.

APPLES—Loose lots from wagons sell at 25a40c ℔ bushel, and are well supplied from adjacent orchards. Choice varieties neatly packed for shipping are quotable at 50a60c ℔ box.

ONIONS—The inquiry is more active, and prices have advanced to about 2c ℔ ℔.

DRIED FRUIT—Large receipts are noticed, and prices are seemingly shading off somewhat. Apples in sacks are quotable at 4½a5c ℔ ℔; in kegs [illegible]. Plums with pits weak at 13 to 14c; pitless, 15 to 16c ℔ ℔.

BACON—The market is still quoted short of Oregon cured Hams and Shoulders, while side meats are supplied in adequate quantities. Prices are rather firmer than at our last review. Owing to anticipations expressed that the packing business in our State will be limited the present season, holders are not anxious about making contracts for future delivery. We quote Sides 10a11c ℔ ℔; Hams, 1[illegible]; and Shoulders [illegible]. The local trade is quiet.

LARD—From Oregon factories is in demand at [illegible] ℔ ℔ in kegs and 14c in tins.

BUTTER—The supply of choice is short, and prices have an upward tendency, which has been well sustained during the week. We quote best for family use at 40c ℔ ℔; good in rolls 25a35c; in kegs 18a20c, and so on according to quality.

CHEESE—Is still liberally supplied both from State dairies and by importations. The former command the [illegible] ℔ ℔.

EGGS—Receipts continue very light, and the few lots arriving are quickly taken at 40c ℔ dozen, where appearances of age and breakage are not too strong. The call is very active for fresh receipts.

POULTRY—There is a scarcity of choice lots, and prices tend upward. We quote Chickens at $4 ℔ doz; Turkeys $1a1 25; Geese [illegible]; Ducks $[illegible]. Wild game is abundant and price low.

BEEF CATTLE—Butchers and packers are proceeding cautiously, receipts falling off and prices growing firmer. Choice lots of young steers command [illegible] ℔ ℔ on foot, generally quotable at 1½a[illegible] ℔ ℔.

DRESSED HOGS—There is some increase in receipts and prices are firm at 6a7c ℔ ℔.

MUTTON SHEEP—The market is fairly supplied at [illegible] head.

HIDES—Trade is apparently less active, owing probably to reported declines in the Eastern Leather markets and the stoppage of factories. Prices, however, are without important change, with less urgency on the part of buyers.

WOOL—Recent advices, both from the Eastern States and Europe, indicate a relaxation of activity and a prevalence of distrust in the markets. Our own is without important change, the ruling rate being [illegible] ℔ ℔ for choice lots.

MEDICAL.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES! NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases of years standing and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces, and their broken down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands wither until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life destroying maladies, so that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are suffering, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in sexual diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians in Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these Charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

Married Men,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DR. GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Cured at Home.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded free from damage and curiosity to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union. All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn to certificates dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patents, letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Postoffice Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

☞ Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the DAILY OREGONIAN. jy5d4p
